Oven construction and cooling technologies

The HEIN company is an innovative family-owned company from Luxembourg, which has been developing high-quality baking and cooling technology for demanding bakers and manufacturing it in its own production facilities since 1882. Every product that leaves the manufacture is the result of over 140 years of experience, the highest level of engineering, the best materials and components, the most modern production techniques down to the last detail and the skills of highly motivated and committed employees.
